What happened to "In Focus?"

On the old website, "In Focus" posts were short commentaries providing policy analysis as well as insight on breaking news. On the new website, "In Focus" has been replaced by the CLASP blog.

How does search work?

CLASP has an extensive library of content. In the past, it was challenging to sift through. That's why search was a key focus as we developed our new website.

We've improved our search algorithm and added numerous filters to narrow results, making it easier than ever to find what you're looking for. You can filter by one or more issue areas, publication or article type, and author. This lets you zero in on exactly what you need.

I'm having trouble finding something that was on the old website. What should I do?
